Public Input Helps to Shape County's "Orange is the New Green" Zoning Code Update

Santa Ana, Calif. – The County of Orange is moving its "Orange is the New Green" Zoning Code update project another step forward after OC Public Works (OCPW) processed and incorporated feedback it received from the public at a series of Planning Commission and Community Workshops held since May 2018.

A second draft of the proposed Zoning Code Update issued by OCPW's Development Services is now available online for a 30-day review and comment period that will conclude on November 30, 2018: http://www.ocpublicworks.com/ds/planning/projects/all_districts_projects/orange_is_the_new_green

Input on the proposed revisions can be emailed to OCZoningCode@ocpw.ocgov.com or in writing to:

The "Orange is the New Green" zoning code update aims to achieve a new standard of sustainability and flexibility to accommodate future technological advances. The Zoning Code Update will continue to set forth land use regulations that apply to the unincorporated areas located throughout Orange County. These regulations are intended to protect the value and enjoyment of property by defining appropriate land uses and minimizing the impact of certain uses on less intense uses. After the review and comment period concludes, a final draft will be prepared and submitted for consideration by the Orange County Planning Commission and the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

OCPW provides innovative services and delivers infrastructure projects on a regional basis to unincorporated areas, cities and other County agencies and departments. The department protects and enriches communities through efficient delivery and maintenance of public works facilities, planning and development services, and environmental resources and consumer protection programs.
